Address of the National Republican Committee.

The [illegible] Rowan, [illegible] the address of the Republican National Committee

The Republican National Committee congratulate the party which they represent [illegible] the result of the fall elections [illegible] In Maine a Republican majority of less than 000 has been increased to nearly 16000 In Vermont the old ascendancy has been fully maintained In Colorado a Democratic majority of 2000 has been overcome and a Republican governor and both branches of the legislature [illegible] securing two U S Senators and three Presidential electors In Ohio the Republican majority of 500 has been increased to between 7000 and 11000 and Republican Congressmen have been gained In Indiana the Democratic majority of [illegible] has been reduced to 600 with a gain of [illegible] Congressmen and the legislature upon joint ballot These highly gratifying results have been obtained in the face of frauds at the ballot box and in the unparalleled use of money by the opposition They show the drift of popular sentiment and clearly indicate a national victory for the Republican party in November All that is now necessary is the [illegible] vigorous prosecution of the campaign to secure protection for all citizens in the right of the ballot to bring all legal voters to the polls and to practice the utmost vigilance on the day of the election Fortunately for the country our candidates represent the best spirit of reform to which they were pledged by every act and utterance of their lives Their success alone will insure honest administration and preserve the Government from the unfriendly hands of those who formerly sought to destroy it and who now seek to prey upon its resources.

The President Receives the Army of the Tennessee.

Washington, Oct 19—Representatives of the Army of the Tennessee were received by the President in the east room of the executive mansion this evening The marine band were in attendance and the reception was one of brilliancy Mrs Grant, Mrs. Sartoris and Mr Ulysses Grant Jr assisted the President in the reception at the conclusion of which a very large number of visitors who had thronged the approach to the executive mansion for some time were admitted and paid their respects to the president.

False Reports Contradicted.

Chicago Oct. 19—The Tribune's Washington special says the assertions of the Democratic press that General Sherman is hostile to the sending of troops to South Carolina are not in harmony with his utterances public and private

Civil Rights in Virginia.

The first conviction under the civil rights bill in Virginia has just been reported from the U S circuit court at Staunton A depot master named Doom, employed by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad there was tried for ejecting a colored woman from the ladies waiting room at the depot several months since Doom was found guilty and sentenced to four months imprisonment

No Joint Rules of Congress

The declarations of many Democrats that the House will control the count of the electoral votes under the 22d joint rule continues the question of the existence of any joint rules between the two houses It has, however been fully examined and settled to day The journal of the Senate shows the following to be the situation of the rules Just before the close of the session the House sent to the Senate the usual resolutions rescinding those joint rules which prevent the consummation of legislation the last few hours before adjournment Edmunds called the matter up and offered the following Resolved That the resolutions of the House of Representatives presented to day in the following words Resolved By the House of Representatives the Senate concurring that the 16th and 17th joint rules be suspended for the remainder of the session be respectfully returned to the House of Representatives with the statement that the House has not notified the Senate of the adoption of joint rules for this present session as proposed by the resolution of the Senate on the 28th of January last and transmitted to the House of Representatives on the 22d of the same month There are no joint rules in force

A Disappointed Delegation.

New York Oct. 20—A Washington dispatch says the presentation of the address from Ireland to President Grant through Messrs O Connor Powell and Parnell members of Parliament has been deferred Powell and Parnell have been informed that, according to etiquette the resolutions will have to come through the British minister here and the State Department to the President An obstacle has been found to the success of the first step in the wording of certain parts of the resolutions One part states that having suffered through seven centuries of tyranny the Irish people make their greeting to the United States and its President. This cannot it is contended be passed by without an act of disrespect on the part of President Grant to Her Majesty's representative The resolutions are a magnificent evidence of art and taste appearing like plate of the purest alabaster inlaid with mosaic They are left in one of the rooms at the White House.

[illegible]ffect of the War on the New Loan

New York Oct. 20—The Times Washington special says the threatening aspect of the Eastern question has excited much interest here for two days but has caused no such excitement as in cities where commercial affairs are more dependent on peace or war The treasury officers have anxiously watched the news and carefully scanned the prospects They ask two questions: Will there be war? and if there should how will it affect the sale of our 4½ per cent bonds abroad? The opinion as to the first question seems to be that there will be no general war The treasury department is grateful at the fact that the 4½ per cents have maintained their highest quotations in London in spite of the general unsettling of values in Europe in securities There is hope that this condition will continue through the European war In that case only one course of interruption in the refunding of our bonds can be discovered If there is war some of the powers must raise money by bonds This is notably true of Russia It might happen that to dispose of the bonds Russia might make such attractive inducements that capital would be diverted in that direction It might seem better to the wealthy money lenders to buy Russian bonds at 75 or 80 or even 90 cents than American bonds at par thus the character of American securities might remain unimpaired and yet subscriptions stop because of the absorption of capital for a time in lower priced bonds of other countries

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

War between Russia and Turkey Considered Inevitable—Disposition of England France and Germany to Stand Aloof—The Powers Trying to Patch up a Peace

London Oct [illegible]—The Times yesterday [illegible] was rendered necessary [illegible] affairs in Europe [illegible] negotiations which have occupied the last twelve months are virtually at an end and war between Russia and Turkey is [illegible] inevitable [illegible] The cabinet is met only to confirm [illegible] arrived. If the result [illegible] the unanimous [illegible] the nation There is to be no ultimatum or contingent [illegible] war There will therefore be no autumn session [illegible] The Cabinet [illegible] can justify the precipitating [illegible] British [illegible] in war. It will be understood that this [illegible] expecting [illegible] is still uncertain and our position will change [illegible] It amounts only to this that the existence of virtual war between Russia and the Porte does not create a state of things calling for our interference that we are not called upon either by the text of the treaty or by moral obligation to defend one of those empires against the other The nation reserves full liberty of action should the compromising of her interests ever call for interference All we can see at present is that a war of race and religion sufficiently formidable is likely to ensue in Eastern Europe If it was a permissible policy to wait and see what would come of the struggle between the Turks and their rebellious subjects it is not now wrong to stand aside and await the development of the same contest England has never undertaken to interfere with the concerns of the continent without continental allies There is no ground for believing that we should have real support from any Power in a war for the defense of the Turkish states Effectual resistance to Servian power must proceed from Austria and Germany It appears unlikely that either of them will take a position hostile toward Russia all having finally returned to the triple alliance

Berlin, Oct 19—A correspondent of the Times telegraphs it is understood that the Austrian reply to the Czar's second letter while promising neutrality in the event of Russian invasion of Bulgaria practically reserves for Austria the right of operating in any other part of Turkey

The Times correspondent at Paris says there is no doubt of the complete accord between Russia Germany and Austria It can easily be seen that England and France will not break their neutrality therefore Russia only has Turkey to face The only minister of the Ottoman cabinet who believed Turkey might defend herself and receive European aid has fallen and the cabinet are now convinced that Turkey can not count on the accord of Europe in her favor and that Turkey can not longer maintain the complete domination of the peninsula. If they hesitate about the six weeks armistice it is because they wish to know the conditions to which they will have to submit. What Russia wants is now known and the Ottoman cabinet will probably resign themselves to it Russia wishes the absolute independence of Servia the recognized independence of Montenegro with an extension of territory, and the annexation of the port of Spezzia and the political and administrative autonomy of Bosnia Herzegovina and Bulgaria. She wishes to strip off Bessarabia, taken from her in 1856 and to have the liberty of the Dardanelles established

London Oct 20—The British Cabinet, at its meeting yesterday, decided upon the policy of abstaining for the present at least and in this policy they have the support of the press and people This removes from the consideration of the chances of the peace of Europe one of the elements which in Wednesday's panic was certainly reckoned upon to disturb the peace in case the Russians crossed the Danube There is nothing in this morning's news to relieve the uncertainty of her intentions London journals seem inclined to abandon all hope of the preservation of peace between Russia and Turkey A Berlin newspaper, on the contrary expresses the opinion that all the powers of Europe including England are equally interested in the consequences of the failure of their joint efforts at Constantinople and that it is unjust to suspect Russia of following the dictates of her interest

French papers agree that France will do her best to maintain peace but will not not take an active part should it end in war

Belgrade, Oct. 20—Serious fighting took place near Salichair Tuesday and Wednesday The Turks are trying to force their way to Paratchin whence their march to Belgrade would only be interrupted by weak fortifications at Chupria Weather has suddenly changed from tropical heat to heavy rain gales and cold This favors the Servians

Constantinople, Oct 20—Gen Ignatieff the Russian ambassador will present his credentials to the Sultan to day It is believed that negotiations are about to reopen between the Porte and the ambassadors of the Powers on the basis of the English proposals

Belgrade Oct 20—It was rumored here Wednesday that 20 000 Russians had crossed the Pruth. The French Italian and Austrian Consul Generals went to Oshovia to ascertain if the report was true, but no confirmation has come

London Oct 20—A dispatch from Vienna says the Turks at Gaitschar repulsed the Servians and have driven them to the plateau at Kopeta and it is said they now intend marching on Paratchan. It is generally conceded certain here that the Czar has been overborne in the Livadian councils by the predispositions of the Empress Czarowitch and Prince Gortschakoff all of whom favor the views of the national party

POLITICAL SPEAKING AT HARRISBURG

Harrisburg Oct 18 1876

To the Editor of the Oregonian

The joint discussion between Dr Watts and F A Cronin nominees for presidential electors came off here on yesterday to quite a large audience Dr Watts led off with a very able speech of an hour in length It was admitted by Republicans, Independents and Democrats to be honorable and fair and it made telling blows at the opposition He reviewed the platforms and made many criticisms upon the Democratic platform that were well taken His reference to the nominees was dignified yet evidently made the impression on the minds of all that Hayes and Wheeler and Williams were the best men for the people to vote for

The action of the last Congress in refusing to borrow money at 4½ per cent interest and pay off the bonds for $3?0 000 000 which was drawing 6 per cent interest thereby saving over $1? 000 000 a year interest was presented in a clear light showing that Democracy was not the road to reform

Mr Bristow's report showing that under Democratic rule the losses were $? 4? to every $1 000 and under Republican rule it was only 57 cents to every $1 000 was of telling effect against the wholesale charge of corruption The report admitted these were losses the Doctor admitted that they had bad men in all parties—had bad officers The Independent movement was based on that proposition and had forced all parties to make nominations when otherwise they would not have been so careful

The claims of the South now pending in Congress for future action were fearful—$100 000 000—more than the whole national debt If Dick Williams was elected we know they will be rejected so far as Oregon's representative is concerned If Mr Lane is elected and the Democratic party demanded it Oregon's vote would be for them What the results would destroy the first mistake made was certainly verified here for when Mr Cronin came to reply it was evident that he had felt the force and power of the doctor's speech He was excited and made broad assertions that every man present knew to be incorrect He said Mr Tilden was a warm man [illegible] all the [illegible] put down the war and [illegible] the Chicago platform [illegible] the Republican party was corrupt that they had [illegible] He [illegible] had just like [illegible] to hard [illegible] was the [illegible] He said he knew what he talked It was manifest to all although the Democrats had nominated one of the ablest criminal lawyers in the State that he was not near able to defend his client The verdict is guilty as charged in the indictment The debate closed with [illegible] minutes and the splinters were knocked from the Democratic hulk with telling effect and at the close the applause clearly showed that the audience were well pleased Judging from all I can hear you can safely put down Harrisburg for Hayes and Wheeler and Richard Williams in November

Chinese Investigation.

San Francisco Oct 19—The Congressional committee of Chinese Investigation convened at the Palace Hotel at 2 30 this afternoon Present Senator Morton, chairman, Senator Sargent Representatives Meade and Piper Mayor Bryant Dr Lorvea Cameron H King Chief Ellis Frank Pixley of citizens committee and Senator McCoppin were present on invitation Senator Morton said the meeting was called to hear suggestions and decide who should be called to testify Mayor Bryant offered several suggestions and hoped the committee would personally visit the Chinese quarters and see how the residents live Senator Sargent hoped witnesses would come freely of their own accord and give their testimony He did not like the idea of issuing subpoenas to compel their attendance Mr Pixley suggested that the testimony taken by the State Senate committee should become a part of the record of the Congressional committee, that the testimony had been carefully taken by intelligent and impartial judges Senator Morton replied and said that the testimony would be used in full as reference and might be accepted as an exhibit of ex parte Nevertheless he thought it would give general satisfaction to conduct the inquiry on the points evolved in that report Messrs Pixley and McCoppin agreed to submit the opening statement for the State municipality Saturday morning at 10 o clock Mr Bee furnished the committee the names of several witnesses and promised to give others on Monday

Revision of the Register in San Francisco.

San Francisco Oct 20—The recent revision of the Great Register throws out some four thousand names as voters including many old and prominent citizens It causes a great deal of interest and comment The judiciary committee of the board of supervisors yesterday held a meeting with reference to the matter and decided upon a plan to recommend to the board, but refused to make its decision public It is expected some means will be devised to avoid the hardship which would follow a strict construction of the law

Wheat.

In wheat circles the feeling is a little more quiet this morning owing partly to news coming to hand rendering it probable that England may keep out of the Eastern fight and also to the fact that the extreme figures demanded by holders yesterday were far in excess of anything warranted by the European market or by the needs of purchasers here Prominent grain operators claim that cargoes are mostly already purchased for engaged tonnage in part and that the indisposition of holders to sell at less than fancy figures will not interfere with the prompt dispatch of the fleet. Still quotations are all abroad and dealers waiting anxiously for further news from the seat of the impending war

POLITICAL MEETING AT SCIO

Scio Oct 18 18[illegible]

To the Editor of the Oregonian

There was a very large audience in attendance at this place yesterday to listen to the joint discussion of the political issues of the day by Hon F A Cronin and Dr Watts When the appointed hour arrived and the crowd were ready for the speeches Mr Daniel Clark the nominee of the Greenbackers as one of the Presidential Electors on the Peter Cooper ticket came forward and asked a share of the time which was granted The discussion was begun by Mr Clark who made a spirited earnest speech which was well received He was followed by Mr Cronin who was reckless in his expression and unscrupulous in his declaration Mr Cronin was followed by Dr Watts, who is said to have made the best speech of the evening one which won for him and the cause a great many friends

LEGISLATIVE NOTES

[illegible]

[illegible] CORRESPONDENT

Salem Oct 20 1876

An observation of the manner in which bills that are of no kind of benefit to the people are put through the two Houses excites little less wonder than the coolness or thoughtlessness with which bills that are really meritorious are slaughtered For instance the action of the Senate in rejecting House bill 8 introduced by Lawrence and passed in the lower House The bill provided that the County Treasurer deposit with the Clerk each month all orders redeemed by him also of orders presented each month for payment also of what moneys have been paid to him upon what fund or tax paid etc Proper penalties were attached to violations of the provisions of the bill, and altogether it would have been a great safeguard around the finances of the several counties which does not now exist at an insignificant cost, but the Senate incontinently slaughtered the bill without a word of protest H B 39 and H B 40 placing some checks on the sheriffs in the matter of the collection and return of taxes were also defeated These three bills appeared to us to have a good deal of merit in them We are informed that in some counties sheriffs have heretofore been rather loose in this matter and cases have arisen where it was clearly evident that the sheriffs had returned much less tax than was collected but owing to the fact that the law placed no check upon the transactions of sheriffs the counties had no practical remedy and suffered great loss Lawrence labored hard for the passage of these bills and as they would have brought order out of confusion in the system of county finances in many instances their enactment would have been wise

Several other bills have been defeated which it would have been well to pass but on the whole we expect more bad ones have been killed than good ones Whatever may be said by the members of their work an impartial public will hardly put the present assembly down as a brilliant or working one In fact there has been more time wasted than ever at any one session The more important measures have been put through without much discussion and many of the bills passed are imperfect and crude and the courts will find a good deal to do before a proper construction of some of them is determined

WATT VS WATKINDS

Senator Watt offered in the upper house yesterday an amendment to the general appropriation bill which, in the language of one of the solid men of your city "knocked the filling out of Bill Watkinds fancy figuring" on penitentiary matters The bill appropriates $40,000 for the general expenses of the penitentiary Watt proposed to amend the section making this appropriation by reducing the amount to $24 000, and providing in addition that the superintendent be authorized to use the entire earnings of the prison in support of the convicts Now as the report of the superintendent for the past two years shows that the receipts of the institution or rather its earnings amounted to $37 521 80, and that the amount actually expended for the maintenance of the prison for the two years was $42,038 81, according to these figures copied direct from Watkinds' report if the superintendent had been allowed to use the earnings of the institution in its maintenance, the amount of the appropriation which he would have had to use would have been only $4 512 01 Watt's amendment proposed that hereafter he be allowed to use these earnings and to give him in addition $12,000 per annum Inasmuch as this amendment would have given (taking Watkinds figures) the sum of $61 521 80 for the support of the penitentiary, whereas only $40 000 was asked the liberality and reasonableness of the proposition was so clear that it put the Democratic Senators completely at their wits end and the appropriation bill for a time seemed in imminent danger of being amended The arguments of Senators Watt and Richardson in favor of the adoption of the amendment were unanswerable and made its reasonableness so plain that, to use the language of McBride to Ross in regard to some of the provisions of a certain other bill, the wayfaring man though a Senator from Clackamas could not mistake in regard to it But it was not intended that a fair discussion of the appropriation bill should be had and hence all efforts to amend it were answered by the argument that any amendments would kill it the time of adjournment being so near at hand, and it is probably true as asserted that the reason it was brought forward so late in the session was that it might not be subject to criticism and amendment at the hands of the Republicans of the assembly and the country generally The Republicans in the legislature did not desire to defeat the appropriation and hence they were almost forced to vote for it by the unjust, unsafe and hasty manner in which it was put through Watt's amendment however so effectually shows up Watkinds' arithmetic or book keeping that the latter will hardly be regarded as the highest authority in figures hereafter, outside of the Democratic Senate

KILLED BY A JEST

The last bill introduced in the lower house was presented by Benjamin of Douglas authorizing the Governor to purchase the Galesville and Canyonville toll road at a cost of $30 000 Gould killed the bill by the perpetration of a joke Benjamin in speaking upon it stated to the House that every time the people in a certain section wanted to go to a blacksmith shop even they were obliged to submit to the exactions in the way of toll from the company owning the road proposed to be bought Gould replied in his peculiarly dry joking manner suggesting that the appropriation be reduced to $250 and the money used to move the blacksmith shop As illustrative of the economy of the age Gould's suggestion was good It was amusing to the House but it was death to Benjamin's bill

WORDY SPARRING

The warmest debate of the session took place in the House yesterday on the bill to provide for public transportation better known as the Umatilla and Ogden railway bill Ferguson who has done a great deal of talking during the session attempted to measure lances with Lawrence on the merits of the bill, and a wordy fight ensued which waxed warm, and some of the sharpest hits yet were made Lawrence being a lawyer rather worsted Ferguson on the talk but got left on the vote on the bill which was killed McBride and Ross also did a little sharpshooting at one another on the same question and two or three friends of the bill made an attack on Cheeseman for his seeming [illegible] on railroad questions He replied with more rhetoric than argument In fact there are a number of members who draw out the thread of their verbosity much longer than the staple of their argument

THE TIME OF ADJOURNMENT

Has been fixed by a joint resolution passed in both houses and unless a reconsideration is had the adjournment will take place to night at 10 o'clock There is however a rumor prevailing that such a reconsideration will be attempted If so there will be some lively skirmishing as there is a strong feeling among the members in favor of going home tomorrow if possible and business is being rushed through at an exceedingly rapid rate No more bills will be sent from one house to the other nor will any that are not well up toward the head of the calendar

J B Dean & Co have decided to build another schooner this year at Marshfield and John Howlett is engaged in getting out the model The construction will be superintended by Mr Reed and the vessel will be owned by Dean & Co

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 21, 1876.

IN THE MATTER OF OPPORTUNITY.

The Oregonian misses no opportunity to assail Senator Mitchell. We had no allusion or insinuation against him in our issue of Wednesday, whatever, yet in its reply to various items it brings the Senator into the question. Senator Mitchell is not a candidate before the people now, and when he is we shall not, like the Oregonian, assail him at the expense of another. We are not satisfied but that Mr. Mitchell has been sinned against fully as much as he has sinned, and while it gratifies the editor of the organ to see the Senator abused, we do not propose to be a party to satiate its hatred of Mr. Mitchell.—Standard.

The OREGONIAN misses a great many first rate opportunities to assail Senator "Mitchell," and does not improve every opportunity to put in a telling thrust under the fifth rib of the Standard—for all of which neglect perhaps the OREGONIAN deserves censure. But the OREGONIAN does not propose to miss the present opportunity of showing what an unmitigated [illegible] the Standard can be when it is so disposed. The Standard says it made "no allusion or insinuation against" Senator "Mitchell" in its issue of Wednesday. In Wednesday's Standard appeared this paragraph:

"[illegible] ching seems to have been the stumbling block of more than one prominent Radical in Oregon. And they all appear to have a hankering to go to Washington, either in the capacity of Senator or Congressman.

And immediately after it, this:

It [illegible] from what we can learn, the Radicals of Or[illegible] are rather unfortunate in their [illegible] of candidates. As a general thing [illegible] have been school teachers, and their "[illegible]ful indiscretions" are a subject of com[illegible]

Yet the Standard says it made no "allusion or insinuation against Senator Mitchell." Pray, Mr. Standard, what Oregon [illegible] did you allude to in your insinuation [illegible] at school teaching, "youthful [illegible]," and so forth? Is there another Oregon Senator, and a "Radical," at that, to whom the allusion could apply? It's entirely too thin, Mr. Standard; better own up like a man, as you did in reference to Mr. Williams, for nobody will be stupid enough to accept so stupid a [illegible] as that you did not refer to the [illegible] pseudonymous. And of course we [illegible] we would be expected to do.

[illegible] while we are about it, we may as [illegible] one or two more of the fictitious statements which the Standard has sandwiched into its pretended apology to the Senator. It says he is not a candidate. Everybody who has sense enough to know anything, knows he is a candidate, and that he is out here now simply to [illegible] his candidacy, which is expected to end in a re-election two years [illegible]. We are not objecting to his being [illegible] any one has the right to do [illegible]. We are only correcting the Standard's [illegible] of fact. We regard it as [illegible] the fair thing for the Standard [illegible] the Senator out in that uncere[illegible]ay. And this, too, we resent—[illegible] would be expected to do.

[illegible] the Standard, with insatiate malice, [illegible] to damn the Senator with faint [illegible] the decidedly original [illegible] that the illustrious pseudonymous [illegible] been as much sinned against as sinning. That may be the case. Bad people [illegible] sin grievously against great [illegible]. And the Standard is one of [illegible] who sin against the individual [illegible] it charges by implication with [illegible] sinner, its sin being that it [illegible] its way to remind the public [illegible]ful indiscretions" by an artful [illegible] of words. We resent this—as we [illegible] expected to do.

[illegible] the Standard is greatly in error [illegible] it supposes we are gratified at any [illegible] it may heap upon the devoted head [illegible] Senator. "On the contrary, quite [illegible]." We are always gratified to [illegible] anything good of him. In fact, we, [illegible] with the rest of the Republicans of Oregon, have suffered no little in[illegible] from the large demand for [illegible]modity and the small supply. [illegible] "give the devil his due." Here is a [illegible]tunity to do that, and we shall [illegible]eavor to do it—though it may [illegible] difficult task.

We hope not to refer to these matters [illegible], and should not do so now but [illegible] so many opportunities to set [illegible] Standard right that we begin to feel as [illegible] we were neglecting duty as well as [illegible]."

RETRACTED.

The OREGONIAN having pushed the [illegible] to the wall on its accusations [illegible] Richard Williams, the Standard [illegible] it all back in the handsomest kind [illegible]yle. That is a great deal better than to persist in the unjust accusation made [illegible] upon misinformation. Says the [illegible]:

We [illegible] accept the denial of the OREGONIAN [illegible] of Mr. Williams, and unless we get [illegible] evidence on the subject, shall cheerfully acknowledge that we have been misinformed in the matter. We do not propose to do any one an intentional or willful wrong, and as Mr. Williams has authorized an emphatic denial of these accusations we conclude that our informant was in error.

That is the honorable. We have not another word to say on the subject, except that if the Standard's haste in publishing such a matter without first being sure of its truth is to be criticised, its manly disavowal and retraction when convinced of the error is equally to be commended.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

HAND BOOK OF GRAPE CULTURE. By T. H Hyatt, A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco.

Grape culture on this coast has scarcely passed beyond the experimental period. While it is nearly a century since the grape now popularly known by the name of the "Mission" grape was introduced into California by the Catholic missionaries, the cultivation of improved varieties, and especially of wine grapes dates from a later time than the acquisition of the country by the United States. Of late years this industry has developed rapidly, but in its nature it requires much time. Viniculture in California has gone far enough to demonstrate the adaptation of the soil and climate of that State to the production of nearly every variety of wine grape in great perfection, but the capacity of the State in that line is not yet fairly begun to be developed. Very lately also it has been shown by actual experiment that in parts of Southern and Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington Territory grape culture succeeds well, many of the best varieties of grape doing as well in those localities as in California, while in Western Oregon some varieties yield fairly and the crop is a sure one. At this stage of the growth of an industry hardly known anywhere in America until recently, the appearance of a thorough work on grape culture particularly adapted to use on this coast will be hailed with gladness. Such a work is that now under review. The author has made himself master of his subject by personal observation and investigation in the vineyards of Southern Europe, and by assiduously observing and studying the subject in California. The book treats of every step from the selecting of vineyard ground to the manufacture of the grapes into wine; tells what grapes are best adapted to different soils and climates, what are best for the table, and what for wine making, and in fact everything that one can get from any source except actual experience, in connection with grape culture. The price of the work is $2, for which sum it will be sent by mail, postpaid, from the house of the publishers.

The question has been asked what party voted against the bill to equalize the bounty of soldiers of the last war. Of course every one knows what party it was. The relation of the two political parties to the war, and the attitude of each toward the soldiers, settles that so completely that it is not worth while to refer to the record on the subject. But it may be well to be specific so far as Oregon is concerned, and so as to bring the matter before soldiers in this State definitely and distinctly. Mr Lane is one of the members of Congress who voted against the bill, as the Congressional Record shows. We are told he stated in one of his speeches in Southern Oregon that he voted for it. If he made this statement his memory must be conveniently treacherous, for his vote stands recorded against it, as one who doubts may verify by an inspection of the record. Honorably discharged soldiers will recollect this on the day of election.

The following paragraph appears in the last number of the Corvallis Gazette:

> W. Lair Hill, of the OREGONIAN, informed, Hon. W. B. Higby, last Wednesday morning, that L. F. Lane had authorized him (Hill) to announce that he (Lane) had withdrawn from the canvass. We knew he would on the 7th of next month, but he has taken "Time by the forelock."

The Gazette is misinformed. We did not impart any such information to Hon. W. B. Higby, and in fact, have not had a moment's conversation with Mr. Higby on that or any other subject for some months. We have great hope, however, that Mr. Lane will retire from the contest on the 7th of November, and shall take pleasure in assisting him about it. If Hon. W. B. Higby would only canvass the entire State and put in such telling blows everywhere else as he did here in Portland, we should feel perfectly sure of Mr. Lane's retirement.

Mr. Lane went from Oregon to Washington City a hard-money man of the straightest sect. In the early part of the session of Congress he maintained his position as a resumptionist. But during the session of Congress the Democratic party met in national convention and resolved against resumption; and, presto, change! Mr. Lane is a rag-money man and anti-resumptionist! His vote was cast not only against the resumption act, but also against the bill for the redemption of the fractional currency with silver coin. Mr. Lane's convictions set so light upon him that at the command of the Democratic leaders at the East he went the whole length of voting with the inflationists, even down to the fractional currency.

J. H. HATCH,

THE SYNOD OF THE COLUMBIA.

The new Presbyterian Synod of the Columbia composed of the presbytery of Oregon the presbytery of South Oregon and the presbytery of Puget Sound—into which the old presbytery of Oregon was divided by the last General Assembly in Brooklyn N Y—convened in the Presbyterian church last night and in the absence of Dr E R Geary was opened with a sermon by Rev John R Thompson of Olympia on the text I am the Light of the world

Synod was called to order by Rev G F Whitworth of Seattle the oldest minister present and opened with prayer

Rev John Rea of Port Townsend and Rev W A Smick of Roseburg were appointed temporary clerks Rev G F Whitworth moderator and Rev H W Stratton of Albany stated clerk

The hours of meeting were then announced by the committee on devotional exercises as follows Synod to convene at 9 o'clock A M the first hour to be spent in devotional exercises Recess from 12 M to 2 P M Recess from 5 to 7 30 P M Devotional exercises on Friday evening, with a sermon by Rev Mr Peck of Salem

Friday morning synod spent an hour in devotional exercises when business was resumed

Rev D W Macfie M A of the synod of Philadelphia was invited to sit as corresponding member of the synod

The minutes of the last meeting of the old Presbytery of Oregon were then read

It was ordered that these records be lodged with the archives of the Synod

A committee on the arrangement and classification of church work was appointed consisting of two members from each Presbytery

During the afternoon session the interests of the Albany Collegiate Institute were discussed at length and a full expression of feeling upon the subject drawn out and the following action unanimously adopted

Resolved, 1 That the Synod regards the work and objects of Albany Collegiate Institute as worthy of our most cordial endorsement and pledge both moral and pecuniary support according to our best ability

2. That a committee be appointed to devise a scheme of endowment of said institution by means of scholarships

3 That a committee of the Synod be appointed to visit the institute at the next annual commencement and report at the next meeting of the Synod

4 That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the board of trustees of said institution signed by the moderator and stated clerk of the Synod

The memorial of the Presbytery of Southern Oregon to restore Benton county and the church of Corvallis to that Presbytery so as to conform to the original memorial to the General Assembly was granted

EAGLE CLIFF NOTES.

Writing from Eagle Cliff under date of the 20th inst an occasional correspondent sends the following

Joseph Hume has enlarged his place at Fu-rcka and has now as large a place as any on the river

The ship Mihault now in Portland, will on her outward voyage take at this place one thousand cases of beef

Rains and hail storms for the past few days have been very severe here and wonder is, Has the rainy season commenced?

To day I saw an Indian have in his boat 100 fall salmon They were offered at the canneries for sale As they do not pack this kind of salmon the Indian salted them I saw them cut open and they were literally filled with spawn

The Cutting Packing Company under the superintendence of N W Tallant Esq are packing beef in cans Under a contract from England they are packing daily from forty to fifty beeves supplied by the Portland slaughterers I understand the demand for beef and soups is quite limited otherwise our farmers and cannery men might find an outlet for their cattle etc

The residents of this place and vicinity are in a commotion on learning of the marriage of one of their oldest neighbors to quite a young lady in Oakland California The gentleman is the oldest cannery man in the salmon business and until now has enjoyed the reputation of a woman hater and has often publicly remarked that a married man was no account to work or to be relied on as they were always under the influence of the woman Consequently the marriage of Mr W Hume gives rise to considerable gossip

Cannery men along the river all are making improvements in buildings and getting ready for next season's catch It is estimated there will be double the amount of boats and nets on the river than the past season Anticipations are that as so many new canneries are being put up the business will be killed by the depopulation of salmon in the river Without the Oregon and Washington Territory Legislatures will grant some aid for propagating or hatching process the natural result will be the extinction of salmon in our waters All laws enacted to govern the catching of salmon will prove futile unless something is done in establishing hatching houses From all cannery men I learn they would be willing to contribute handsomely to the establishment of hatching places

WHEN WILL THE ROSES FADE?

When will the roses fade?
When will the daylight flee?
When will the evening shade
Over the [illegible]?
When the last note be played,
Know you or I

When will the music fall
Dull on our listless ears
When will all pleasures pall
Heavy with sighs and tears
Vainly our love [illegible] recall
Know you the years

When shall we be at peace
Under the grassy sod?
When shall our sorrows cease?
When will the path be trod?
When shall our joys increase
Some day with God

Somewhere to find our friends
May not be far to go,
Patience! for Heaven sends
Comfort as well as woe
Somewhere the roadway ends—
Somewhere we know

If we with steadfast feet
Journey in faith along
Out of the bitter sweet
Out of the feeble strong
Angels at length will greet
Us with a song —Franklin W. [illegible]

A SECOND WIFE

"White and silent in the center of the darksome room lay the source of all the darkness the sobs, the black veils She looks peaceful, doesn't she?" murmured an aunt to a sister who was dropping bitter tears "At last! At last!" The words sounded as if they were ground between closed teeth

Mr. Magogue stopped beside the closed coffin, he was taking a last look at the face that had smiled at him through a bridal veil fifteen years before

"See how moved he looks whispered Mrs Brown to her daughter Ah! she was a high-strung creature—not just the one to make a man happy—yet how attentive and polite he was to her! There is not a better man in [illegible]"

"It [illegible] as if he could not get away from that coffin," remarked Mrs Prism to Mrs [illegible] "Oh! she was a high tempered girl! But they seemed to get on well of late years He always got her everything she wanted What a fine looking man he is!"

[illegible] occurred a sudden movement "It is that sister of Mrs. Magogue, Julia Moore She came near fainting, her aunt took her out; the mourning crowd explained to each other.

Outside: "Julia! Julia! don't take on so dear. Here, here—come in a minute Mrs More drew her niece into a conservatory and dipping her handkerchief into the tinkling fountain, she soothed Julia's temples She stayed the spasmodic hand clenchings but still glared at her aunt out of her dry eyes "There, there, cry now, dear, it will do you good," said her aunt, still laving her face

"I can't cry, aunty; but you did well to [illegible] me out; in another moment I should [illegible] at that hypocrite I should have [illegible] around to those maudlin women [illegible] said: 'There is her murderer' [illegible] the man who swindled her out of her [illegible]; who broke her heart and wore out her life! To hear those women go on about her 'high temper'! My poor darling! Not fit to make him happy! Ah! I wish I had the making of him happy for a little while!"

Several maids and widows had a thought of the handsome widower which fitted into the [illegible] words, but not into the gritty accusation [illegible] by his sister-in-law

"Don't, July dear," pleaded Aunt Moore, "[illegible] let anybody say any such thing, [illegible] was as happy as most [illegible] At rest, she is resting now, and perhaps [illegible] of Heaven has already washed the [illegible] of earth. Do try to compose [illegible], and let us go back,"

[illegible] but we need not follow [illegible] there, heavy with [illegible] and heliotrope, the flowers of love

[illegible] a year afterwards, Mr Burt [illegible] have been bidding a fer[illegible] to a cherub face at the door [illegible] country house. Stepping back [illegible] he noticed a friend waiting

"[illegible] with me, [illegible]"

"[illegible] you're a good fellow, Magogue" [illegible] man drove back to the city Mr [illegible], "This opera going is costly to a poor devil, if the lady lives in [illegible] if it rains, but you are [illegible] devil."

[illegible] laughed: "I don't care what I [illegible] the campaign, so I come out victor"

"[illegible] you have begun a campaign in earnest?"

"[illegible]"

"[illegible] Which one is the besieged Miss [illegible] She has fine, dark, gray eyes, like your wife?"

"[illegible] know; it is not Miss Erminia!"

"[illegible] Helen? She is an accomplished, handsome girl."

"[illegible] accomplished, she has too many [illegible] of her own I've had enough of [illegible]"

"You want an echo."

"[illegible] if you like to put it so. I do want an [illegible] I want a little, artless, affectionate docile, clinging sort of woman I am going in for Miss Effie."

"Miss Effie! Why, she's hardly out of [illegible]"

"Hardly. I know what I want."

"She would scarcely be much of a companion"

"I don't want a companion."

"[illegible] she's a dear little thing to pet—sweet, [illegible] quivering lips—you can't speak to her but the color rises in her face What flossy, [illegible] she has! On the whole, why [illegible] you get a Skye terrier?"

"I know what I want," repeated Magogue [illegible] smile on his fine features [illegible] the new engagement enlivened the [illegible] tea-table.

"So [illegible]" sighed Miss Prune

"[illegible]" echoed her brother, "why, his wife [illegible] a year, she wouldn't be any [illegible] if he waited three"

"So [illegible]" said Mrs. Prism.

"[illegible] just what he wants," said Mr Prism, "a sweet little, clinging, docile thing"

"An echo"

"Yes, an echo. I guess he had enough of [illegible] opinion in his first wife if the truth were known"

"So handsome he is so fascinating and so rich," said Mrs. Shrimps "It is a fine thing for Effie K[illegible], youngest of the three"

"His first wife had a good deal of money," said Mrs. Shrimps. "I've heard say that he [illegible] pretty short, though"

"Of her own money?" asked Mrs. Shrimps

"My dear, after she married him it was her husband's money I think she was inclined to be extravagant. A high spirited self-willed thing she was as Margaret More I don't think they were very congenial, and I am afraid this is not going to be any better—a [illegible] it, pretty, babyish thing, a youngest, and [illegible] spoilt."

Julia More saw her brother in law one day He was in a jeweler's store gently fitting a gold ring upon an elfin finger All Julia knew of her sister's unhappiness she knew by a blind, certain instinct the scene before her caused an intolerable pang of reminiscence Then she glanced again at the slight little figure, the sweet-eyed cherub face and the tall, dark form impending over them Pity devoured her heart Poor child poor child!

An old nurse who had reared all the Keene children, watched the pair saunter up the steps that night.

"Eh! a fine, handsome man he is—and how sweet to her! But he'd better have taken Miss Erminia or Miss Helen Poor Mr Magogue!"

But Mr Magogue had found exactly what he wanted at last. When he tried to explain to her that Tilden, Presidential candidate had never been mixed up with Mr Beecher's affairs, but was the man who more than any other man in the country represents —how sweetly she shook her flaxen curls?

"Don't try to put all that into my poor little head which man are you for"

"Tilden"

"Then I am for Tilden

This was delightful to a man who remembered seeing his first wife when an erratic child weeping passionately because her man was elected instead of Fremont"

Mr Magogue considered it unfeminine for women to interest themselves in politics To be sure the fair child Frances Walsingham first attracted her knightly lover by her intense interest in a certain phase of politics But then her lover was not Burt Magogue, but Philip Sydney

Mr Magogue and Miss Effie Keene were to be married in the spring Sweet Effie could scarcely make up her mind to leave the country where she had been reared, where all her friends lived and go to live in the city, which suited Mr Magogue's business

"We will go away on our tour my pet said Magogue at one of their last partings under the stars When we come back you can make up your mind The smile that adorned his features after her back was turned was not one which his bride elect would have recognized Her predecessor knew it well

On this tour she was all sweetness gentle and grace On coming back they stopped at her father's The next morning Mr Magogue addressed Effie

Dearest you know I would like to consult your wishes in this as in everything but my business requires that we should live in the city

Don't tease dear rolling up her sky blue eyes But how bad that is For you know my health will not stand the city

Mr Magogue's brow darkened

You know said his bride sinking upon a cushion [illegible] her flossy head up on his knee how I would love to live in the city so as to suit you but you see I should die there You don't want me to die do you? So if you really can't live in the country I shall have to stay at papa's shall I not But you'll come out and see me won't you? And she rolled up the long lashed eyes

He was angry baffled bamboozled but he stooped and kissed her He hired a pretty house in the country As to living at her father's—not for him He would be master in his own house there

But he was not quite satisfied He had a vague sense that he was not having his own way he scarcely knew why To the first wife he had handed out her own money discreetly from her he had required strict account of every cent But this was such a childish creature He would teach her though in time there was no doubt of that

Was that she in the jeweler's shop? Impossible! But it was his Effie and the jeweler was just handing her a box She caught sight of her husband's excited eyes she skipped towards him at the door

O look here, dear!

She held him the open box on the white satin sparkled a cross of alternating sapphire and diamond

Effie, I told you I could not afford that

"Oh don't look at me like that!" she pouted, rolling up her lips "I know you said you could not afford it, so I borrowed the money of Cousin Charles he said he would as soon lend it me as not For these sapphires I must have them they just match my eyes they belong to me see?" With such a smile

But Magogue could have kicked himself for smiling back to her as he did but what was he to do with such a child?

Thinking it over, he began to see that he was being cajoled he Burt Magogue, must put a stop to this it was time he came out in a new character or men would call him doting "Cousin Charles, indeed Where was he drifting?

A day or two afterwards Magogue was riding home in an unpromising humor Some of that first wife's money very wisely invested he thought had just sunk out of sight and reach This annoyed him He was a man who needed a good deal of money None of your goody goody two cent fellows was he Then the long dull country ride bored him What a fool he had been to give in to her about living in the country She must have a lesson," he said, shaking his head grasping his whip, and touching up his gray horse Another turn brought him to round into the broad elm arched avenue that led to his door Arrived there what does he see?

A groom with two horses one beautiful, snow white, bearing a lady's new saddle

Burt Magogue sprang up his steps he crossed the piazza at a stride the hall at another he looked in at the ante room door A lady was glancing at the long mirror a petite lady smiling at a petite double in navy blue riding habit with silver buttons navy blue velvet hat with ostrich plume, a flame of geranium at her throat a silver mounted riding whip in her little hand.

"What the [illegible] does this mean, Madame? shouted the flower of Roseville chivalry

She turned round bowed, walked up to him "What did you say to me, sir? she asked graciously

"I asked you what in h—l you mean by this"

She laughed a silver laugh "Oh! Why it means that I am going out to ride I like riding. Cousin Charles went with me yesterday to look at a horse He says he is a splendid fellow, and you see how handsome he is The bill for him will come in to morrow Don't I look nice dear?"

He clenched the whip still in his hand. "I'll pay no bill for any horse, he is going back where he came from—with the groom And you, Madame, walk up stairs, take off that gear and put on something decent, and then come down to me"

She looked up at him, lips apart, from under the curled, navy blue rim of her riding hat then clapped her tiny hands and burst into sweet peals of cherub laughter

"D—n it! Madame, are you mad? Do you think you can behave like this? You didn't know my first wife—she's dead" He spoke in an ominous tone that lowered the color in Effie's rounded cheek, her lips curled back like those of a child when first confronting some strange unpleasant animal

Burt Magogue went on "She was a spirited, high-tempered thing but I brought her down Would you like to know how I brought her down?"

"Yes—I should, she answered with that curious fearless glance just touched with something that might have been dismay had it not been more like scorn How did you do it?

"I conquered her—with the lash!"

Little Effie shuddered and looked down Her delicate face was working with horror with pity for her predecessor with terror for the gulf suddenly opened at her feet swarming with the misbegotten wrongs that follow the meeting of irresponsible power and weakness Or was it only terror for herself, hopelessly in the power of her natural protector, lowering over in his vast superiority of physical strength? He wished she would look up these baby faces can be as baffling as the timeless brows of Sphynx At last those golden lashes lifted, the timid eyes rose up and up until they met his, they gave him a disagreeable sensation, he would revenge it upon her some day—though she was almost too pretty to be crushed

"You did—did you? She had taken in his remark it seemed Then she walked up to him, clenched her fist to the size of a magnolia bud affixed him with eyes whose cherub blue was lost in a glitter, like bayonets in the sun

"Well—if you ever lay—so much as your least finger's weight on me—don't you ever shut your eyes again for the first time I find you asleep I'll cut your throat from ear to ear So hear me every saint in heaven

She turned at the door flung back a laugh "This is your second wife!"

With this echo she left him

A horrible sensation clutched Burt Magogue He fought it as if it were paralysis What was it? And what being was this that he had married this mocking, sprite like thing whom he could not terrify? He knew all about women—yes, the bravest of them flighty, provoking, but nervous naturally subject to fears docile as sheep to one who showed them a little real resolution What manner of woman was this? He turned quickly at a sound without There she was mounting that snow white steed and there was nothing reassuring in the smile she flashed him ere she whirled off in a night blue cloud of draperies Was she some witch sent by Hecate queen of the night and of the dead Burt Magogue believed just as much in one religion as he did in another you see normal flesh and blood it could not be that had threatened him with Effie Keene's soft lips and transfixed him with her liquid eyes Could it be some unsleeping ghost arisen taking possession of a sweet familiar shape? Faugh why had he ever read those uncouth horrors of Hoffman and Beck and Edgar Poe * * * Burt Magogue had always derided the supernatural Can a shadow of it keep him so docile as he is to his elfin wife? Why the men growl now and then He is getting to be the mere echo of his echo —[illegible] Journal

TO THE VOTERS OF COWLITZ AND WAHKIAKUM COUNTIES

ILWACO PACIFIC CO W T Oct 9

The WEEKLY OREGONIAN of October 7th 1876 contains an address to the independent voters of your counties signed by M S Griswold chairman of the committee on nominations for Pacific County Independent Convention In this address Mr Griswold says "The avowed object of this candidate C A Reed is local legislation the nature of which is understood to be a threat against property and vested rights In Pacific county it is well understood that such a charge has no foundation in truth and needs neither refutation nor comment from me but in the counties of Cowlitz and Wahkiakum where I am not so well known it is possible some might be found to credit Mr Griswold's statement I desire first to call your attention to the fact that Mr Griswold in making this charge leaves you altogether in the dark as to the nature or character of the proposed local legislation which he says is my avowed object It there was even the shadow of foundation for such a charge why does he not out with it like a man so that you can get an intelligent understanding of the matter upon which to base your action at the polls on the 7th day of November next But he studiously avoids any such explanation for fear of exposing the secrets of the little squad of men for whom he assumes to speak The promiscuous jingle of words in which this gentleman indulges himself when he says threats against property and vested rights French socialism American soil and the preponderance of a foreign vote etc bears the indelible impress of the political trickster and demagogue In regard to the preponderance of the foreign vote in this county such is not the fact while it is true we have quite a number of citizens in this county of foreign birth who are as a class industrious useful and enterprising and who, in point of intelligence and integrity of character will bear favorable comparison with the average citizens of this county And now as to my avowed object for it is true that I have one and do not hesitate to say what that object is As a citizen and taxpayer of Pacific county my object now is and has been in time past to promote the general prosperity of the county by giving proper encouragement to the development to each and every one of its rich and varied natural resources to use my best endeavors to hasten the survey of agricultural lands and thereby open them up to actual settlers who come to cultivate the soil to aid in the construction of public roads whenever they are found practicable and in cases where there is too little local labor to insure their speedy construction, if there is no authority in law by which the county commissioners are justified in appropriating money then I am in favor of legislation to enable them to do so in all cases where the advantages to be desired will fully justify the outlay What I have said in regard to this matter is and shall be my object for all the counties which compose this council district If elected to the office for which I am nominated my object shall be first to make myself thoroughly acquainted with the legislative wants of the whole district without regard to the particular county in which I happen to reside especially with the great salmon fishing interests now only partially developed, the greater portion of which are located within the limits of this council district I shall deem it my imperative duty to visit and consult representative men who are engaged in that branch of industry and solicit advice and information in regard to what legislation, if any is necessary to secure its permanent prosperity Having secured proper knowledge of the legislative wants of the district, you can rest assured that no effort shall be spared on my part by all honorable means to promote the best interests of the whole district
